

Introduction: explains the purpose of the charter and provides the project name

Business case and scope statement: explains the purpose of the project (including business drivers and any related projects), defines high-level activities that are part of the scope of the project (this will help avoid scope creep later), and covers the expected return on investment

Success criteria: defines what success looks like and how the team will measure success

Major requirements or deliverables: summarizes high-level requirements and/or key deliverables

Budget: estimates project costs, ideally by project phase, and defines sources of project funding

Milestone schedule: estimates project duration and summarizes each major part of the project and all milestones

Assumptions and constraints: identifies known and unknown parameters upon project initiation

Project risks: summarizes major known threats or opportunities that may affect project success

Team and organization: defines project roles and responsibilities

Approvals: includes a space for stakeholders to record their approval (or disapproval) of the charter.

In addition to these project charter sections, you may also include an appendix with documents such as:

List of deliverables: if deliverables are already defined, this list contains details about each deliverable—what it is and the associated acceptance criteria

Scheduling documents: project timeline, calendar, or other documents that sequence project activities and include details about each project milestone or phase
